

XPRESSO DELIGHT

SIMON TERRY moved his family from the UK to Perth in 2007 to retire and enjoy the quiet life, but just a few months later, he started looking for a new business opportunity, without the full-time hours.

Simon, who worked as a policeman in the UK for 19 years, said he was intrigued by the passive business system offered by coffee franchise Xpresso Delight.

"I saw an ad in the paper and thought 'that's too good to be true' so I called up and pretty soon I was operating my own Xpresso Delight franchise," he said.

By placing gourmet, commercial grade espresso coffee machines into businesses and charging by the cup, Simon has a business with unlimited growth potential which delivers a full time equivalent income for just 10-20 hours work per week.
